

Sorry...

Regular program to be continued soon... One thing about no longer subbing is that I no longer have a lot of time to pass reading books as I did during specials (elementary) or free periods (middle school). I typically don't even take a lunch break- I just eat while driving to the next dealer. For the last couple of weeks I have been heavily reading the tome from Robert Jordan known as book one of the Wheel of Time. Yep, many more will follow, but I will take a break between books.

So besides skipping out on reading my friends' blogs which I will remedy soon, I have missed out on some topics to blog about, like first week of May holiday crunch with three celebrated days in a row. We all know about cinco de mayo, but bookending May 5 are Star Wars Day (May the 4th... be with you) and the National Day of Prayer which a liberal judge recently decided was "unconstitutional," but in his graciousness set aside his Judgment while appeals are made. How nice. Yeah right it's unconstitutional- as if asking people to pray is advocating one religion over another. How many religions pray now? Of course I personally advocate only one and believe only prayers to our one God are heard and answered but that's beside the point of this day set aside for our nation.

Dandelions- all over the place. This menace to lawns everywhere is really bad, at least in this area. One of the guys in my small group runs a landscaping business and has personally testified to this Spring 2010 epidemic. Mow 'em over, they are back in less than two days, spewing their poison as little white puffs in the wind. Pick 'em, and the next day they are back with a vengeance. I would readily believe after this week that the Greek myth about the Hydra started with these small yellow creatures- cut off one head and two take its place.

So what does the future of posting hold? Well, I still have a couple of yearbook posts in me and I haven't started on any retrogaming posts. Those will be starters. And I am hoping Saturday the 15th will bring a post, when we try again to do a small group outing for our young 4th-grade boys. And there is yet another holiday approaching this Sunday. Well, time to pick up the pizza- gotta go!

PS. For certain OH readers, it looks like I am good to visit Memorial Day weekend- I am 95% sure I can stay through Monday. I have cleared it with my boss, but I still have to mention it to the two dealers I serve that day. I'm sure they will be happy to not have me come on Memorial Day though.

---

And I'm off...

Would you take one look at me and say, "Send that boy to camp?" Well, whatever your answer that is precisely where I am headed. Six days in Michigan taking charge of 5-7 nine- and ten-year-old boys. There are roughly 100 campers going this week and we are headed there a couple hours earlier than last year. Previously the buses were scheduled to leave at 11, now it is a bright and early 8:30, which by the way is when you should see this post (central time). However, we are headed home early as well- Friday after dinner instead of Saturday morning. As usual there are some new things to see when I get there, but probably the most anticipated is seeing the buses go all the way down to the game field so we don't have to walk a mile to get to our cabins. Ahh...

I suppose I will have to write up my tale when I get back just for you readers ☐

I was thinking about writing up my week ahead of time, 3-5 posts for the week using the delayed posting feature, and then see how accurate I was at the end since I have been there four times before after all, but I ran out of time. Sorry about that. It's not as if I have gone a week without posting before. Sigh. Well, assuming I survive, see you in about a week!

---

Hiatus?

My life is so uninteresting I am seriously considering a hiatus right now. I am a bit depressed that there is such little interest in my blog. True, I don't exactly advertise it outside of a link in my signature at a site I don't post much at, but I would have thought some would post here outside of the three regulars (and one irregular). I am also disappointed in myself at not going after a new job. Subbing has barely paid the bills, and now I am one month into no income. At one time I had hoped to supplement subbing with some sort of computer-based business like an ebook or computer repair, but it's looking like that end is not only dead but rotting away...

Maybe I can think of something to post every now and then, or maybe something will happen that will give me something to post about, but until then it doesn't look good for this blog. However, I know my mood is down right now so I won't make any decisions until it improves.

I know I used to post school news, but all I have really read in the last few months was so-and-so teacher has improper relations with his or her students and so-and-so gets in trouble for showing their Christianity. In other words, nothing worth posting, at least here. This kind of stuff is just too common and too sickening. Maybe retrogaming news? There was a new release of Gamebase Amiga recently. Get this package, WinUAE, and a few Kickstart ROMS and you're all set to go with playing old amiga games. Another package for Amiga if you want to do more than play games is AmigaSys 4.

So, until later.

EDIT: Hm, this new post seems to have broken the embedded video from Friday. Even though no one showed any interest in it anyway here's the direct link: I Pledge Allegiance to the Lamb

EDIT 2: Video looks to be working again.